“What is the use of a newborn child?

To raise the dead heart? ---to set wild the fettered heart.”

(Poor Richard- Benjamin Franklin)

TODAY'S SPEAKER: David Koch, Associate Professor of History at Housatonic College in Bridgeport was introduced by Ted Spool and spoke about the complex and extraordinary progress of western mankind in the 1800s. Peppered with names and facts, comments about inventions and mentions of science, medical and philosophical advancements, Professor Koch loaded our brains with what went on in the 19th Century...often called the Age of Romanticism, Invention, Wonder and Science. Which one was most appropriate? "A Casual Stroll Through the Lunatic Asylum" proved to be a volcanic presentation of what led us up to the following observation...(my favorite) that between 1903 with the Wright Brothers and 66 years later, humans flew not 1 mile but 239,000 miles to the moon.

Peter Uhry – Editor
