Are the Wall Street Police Protecting You?

As we come up on ten years from when our markets and economy suffered the greatest crash since 1929, are your interests being protected and have we experienced real reforms to our financial markets and regulatory oversight? Please join us as we welcome longstanding Wall Street veteran Larry Doyle to review the little discussed but real factors behind the market meltdown of 2008 and why, in fact, little has changed to truly protect investors going forward.

Mr. Doyle has worked on and around Wall Street since the early 1980s. Having launched his career at First Boston trading mortgage-backed securities, he subsequently worked at Bear Stearns, UBS, Bank of America and his career on the sell side of Wall Street culminated when he became national sales manager for Securitized Products at JP Morgan. He has written at length on the worlds of Wall Street, Washington, and the global economy and was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize for his highly acclaimed book, In Bed with Wall Street (St. Martin's Press, 2014). He is a founding partner in his investment advisory practice while simultaneously working with partners in an international consulting and oversight effort that investigates wide ranging financial fraud.

Mr. Doyle is a 1983 graduate of the College of the Holy Cross (Cum Laude, Phi Beta Kappa).
