Andrew Winston

“Net Positive: Building businesses that profit in volatile times by solving the world’s problems”

Our economy and society are healing from the pandemic, but extreme challenges remain. Who can lead us to a better future? Business. Based on his new book Net Positive, this inspiring talk from Greenwich-based strategist Andrew Winston will help you understand the seismic changes sweeping through society, and how to build companies that profit by taking on humanity’s greatest and most urgent challenges, climate change and inequality.

Andrew Winston is a globally-recognized expert on megatrends and how to build companies that thrive by serving the world. Named to the 2021 Thinkers50 list of the top management thinkers in the world, his views on strategy have been sought after by leading companies, including 3M, DuPont, J&J, Kimberly-Clark, Marriott, PepsiCo, and Unilever. Andrew is the author of the bestsellers The Big Pivot and Green to Gold, which Inc. Magazine put on its all-time list of 30 books that every manager should own. His latest book, Net Positive: How Courageous Companies Thrive by Giving More than They Take (co-authored with renowned CEO Paul Polman), is one of Financial Times’ Best Business Books of the Year.

Andrew’s also writes regularly for Harvard Business Review and MIT Sloan Management Review, and has appeared in major media such as Bloomberg, The Wall Street Journal, New York Times, and CNBC. Andrew is a highly respected and dynamic speaker, reaching audiences of thousands at global executive meetings and at high-profile events like TED. He received degrees in economics, business, and environmental management from Princeton, Columbia, and Yale. Andrew lives in Old Greenwich with his wife Christine (a GHS grad) and two teenage sons.

Our speaker in two weeks, January 5th: Melissa Brunet, Candidate for conductor of the Greenwich Symphony Orchestra, “Conductors Choice”.
