Larry Kantor

“Inflation Changes Everything: Implications for the Economy and Financial Markets”

We are now in a very different stage of the business cycle than we were a year ago when massive fiscal and monetary policy support was generating rapid gains in economic activity and asset prices. The largest increases in public spending and money supply the US has ever experienced has resulted in the highest inflation seen in 40 years. Unfortunately, the fading of supply bottlenecks will not be enough to bring inflation down to an acceptable level. It will also require a significant weakening in the economy - enough to increase the unemployment rate. This means that a recession is likely before the end of next year. It also suggests that stock and bond prices probably have not yet bottomed.

Please join us to hear Larry Kantor, who will draw on his many years as a senior leader in the financial industry to tackle the critical economic issues of the day. Larry has appeared on six previous occasions before the RMA and has received widespread praise for his clear, concise, and comprehensible views on national issues from an economist's perspective. Larry is currently an Operating Partner at Atlas Merchant Capital, a private equity firm. He was a 2016 Advanced Leadership Institute Fellow at Harvard University following his retirement as Managing Director and Global Head of Research at Barclays, where he was responsible for global research, including economics, equities, interest rates, foreign exchange, emerging markets, credit, and commodities. He was also a member of the investment bank Executive Committee and made numerous media appearances, including CNBC, Bloomberg TV and radio, and The Nightly Business Report. Prior to working at Barclays, Larry held several positions of increasing responsibility in academia, at the Federal Reserve Board and in the financial industry. Larry received his PhD and MA in Economics from Ohio State University.
