Dr. Michael Parry, M.D.

“Protecting Public Health: an Update on the Pandemic”

Dr. Michael Parry, Director of Infectious Diseases at Stamford Hospital, will give us an update on the current state of the pandemic and what lies ahead. He will discuss the course of Covid 19 in recent months, the threats posed by variants and mutations, and the effectiveness of the administration of the vaccine. He brings a special expertise to the subject as Connecticut has been a leader in combatting the virus and Stamford Hospital a big part in that fight.

Dr. Parry was born in England and grew up in San Diego. He graduated from Yale University and Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons. He did both his internship and residency at Columbia P&S where he was appointed Chief Resident. He continued his training as a Fellow in Infectious Disease also at Columbia.

Dr. Parry has been on the staff of Stamford Hospital since 1976 where he served as Senior Vice President for Medical Services and Chief Clinical Officer. He has been the Medical Director of the Covid Response Team and Covid Vaccination Program for the past year. He also served on the staff of Greenwich Hospital from 1984 to 2012. He is a Professor of Clinical Medicine at Columbia P&S and holds the Thomas J. Bradsell Endowed Chair at Stamford Hospital.

Dr. Parry has written over 100 articles in peer reviewed journals on the subject of Infectious Diseases. He is widely respected as an excellent teacher and has lectured extensively on Covid.

Next week, May 26, David Pogue, Technology and science writer, TV presenter, and Emmy winning correspondent for CBS Sunday Morning, “How to Prepare for Climate Change.”
