Nelson Tebbe

“The Roberts Court and the Future of the Free Exercise and Establishment Clauses of the First Amendment”

The First Amendment is usually thought to have two clauses concerning religious freedom: the Free Exercise Clause and the Establishment Clause. With regard to both of these, the Roberts Court is in the process of remaking constitutional law. Professor Nelson Tebbe will explain these changes, including their likely trajectory in the future. He will discuss cases the Court just decided in June and July of 2020, cases it is about to decide in its coming term, and constitutional conflicts over free exercise and nonestablishment that have cropped up during the Covid pandemic.

Professor Tebbe teaches courses on the First Amendment and general constitutional law at Cornell Law School. He was recently named the Jane M.G. Foster Professor of Law at Cornell. He holds a B.A. degree from Brown University, a J.D. from Yale Law School and a Ph.D. with distinction from the University of Chicago Divinity School. Before entering teaching, he clerked for Hon. John M. Walker of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, worked for the American Civil Liberties Union and was an associate at Davis Polk and Wardwell. He was a Fulbright Scholar at the University of Cape Town in South Africa. He is an author of recent articles concerning religious freedom and the Covid pandemic in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and The Atlantic.
